

lower yakima valley nitrate study

to: R10YVNitrate

11/29/2012 12:28 PM

From:

To:

R10YVNitrate@EPA

In reviewing the study of the EPA and the findings of other scientists in this particular field your findings seem to be very incomplete and poorly done. If this does not concern you then I would have to question your motives as a viable entity in the protection of our natural resources and us as US citizens.

We as dairymen and women in this industry not only raise our families on these farms but consume the products we produce including meat, milk and the water from these wells that are under scrutiny. Nobody has more to lose or gain by the management of these resources.

We are under NRCS standard of nutrient management and bookkeeping that no other segment of agriculture is held to. The implementation of this has been costly as well as time consuming. We are dedicated to the constant caretaking of our industry and the welfare of our neighbors which includes your families and children, can you say the same.

I would encourage the extension of the comment period for a better overview of all the concerns that held in the public forum.

Respectfully,

[Redacted signature]

[Redacted signature]

Chamberlain Dairy Inc.